

This was supposed to be a story about a giant

FEE! FI!
FO! FUM!

who lived in a castle at the top of a beanstalk

NO WAY!

and got stroppy when a boy
kept nicking his stuff...

FAIR ENOUGH

But Jack chopped
down the beanstalk

TIMBEEEEEEEEEEER!

and
down fell the giant.

The end.

A colorful illustration of a giant with a large nose and wide eyes, wearing a red tunic and blue pants, climbing a thick green beanstalk. The beanstalk is coiled around a tree trunk. In the background, a castle with red-roofed towers sits on a hill. The scene is set against a backdrop of soft, white clouds.

However, I can't tell you that story because THIS giant won't stay in his castle.

Mischief, mischief, here I come!

"No, no, that's not how it goes!" says Jack.
"You can't come down HERE!"

"FEE! FI! FO! FUM!"

But giants NEVER do as they're told.
